Not illustrated. 1917 Excerpt: . . . action of the respiratory apparatus leads to overloading and ultimate failure of the right side of the heart. Hence we must seek to keep up the respiratory pump by lessening the frequency and increasing the depth of the respirations. A great many cases will get well without treatment. This is called the self-limited condition. The disease simply runs its course, and if the patient is properly fed, strengthened, and guarded, a favorable termination may be expected. On the other hand, there are certain symptoms which demand treatment. For example, hyperpyrexia will require treatment, especially so as the continuation of the same may be the means of developing disturbances resulting in convulsions. My preference has always been for the use of cold externally. If cyanosis exists then warm flaxseed poultices may be tried. The sudden application of cold externally causes a deep inspiration and consequent forcing of...
